ANNUAL DEVELOPER PANEL DEVELOPING FOR FUTURE IMPACT

As producers of 80-percent of global GDP, cities are the primary economic and cultural engines of our time. That urbanizing activity, spurring increased density and development, comes with its own challenges: of housing and homelessness, mobility and connectivity, climate and infrastructural resilience, among them. Given these challenges in the context of everchanging markets, it becomes increasingly necessary to develop projects for both current and futures needs ... to future-proof our cities, their economies and cultures, for success.

Join us as we hear from leading local developers on how we're collectively building Los Angeles towards a better tomorrow!
